

Easter Pandemic Manifesto

April 2021.

I know you are awake. I can see it in the way you smile at me behind that mask and especially when you make the effort to look into my eyes, as we pass each other on the street and raise our hands in a friendly wave, simultaneously blessing one another: “may you be well and healthy and safe”, not because I am afraid of you, but because you are me and I am you. If I could, I would take this silly mask off so I could show you my face, which is the face of God, because I am you and you are me and we are all made in this glorious divine image. We are not weak, we are not sick, contagious, dangerous or confused. We are healthy, at peace, clear and knowing. We are powerful beyond measure and we know it. “It is not our darkness we fear most, it is our light”. So we stay small for a little while. We hide and hang our heads for a little while. We curl our shoulders in, denying our true nature for a little while. We put up with it for little while.

But you! You who smiled at me and held my gaze at the grocery store, behind your mask and hand sanitizer. You saw the light and love in me. You saw the health in me and in yourself. You know who I AM. I AM awake. I am not afraid anymore. I will show you and all the world my love for you and for all humanity. For I am the son of God and you the daughter my dear Sister too! Let us lay down our primitive fearful minds and come to our senses, to our sanity to our salvation, to our Unity and stand not apart but together for our children and theirs. On this day, I see you with vision and not with sight. On this day, I see you as innocent, pure, holy, sacred, healthy and full of light as I see myself. On this day, I focus on our success and not on our loss. For we cannot be persecuted, suppressed or enforced. Our true essence is other worldly and untouched by any of the pain this world has brought. That is what we are: pure, innocent, perfect and whole. That is how we enter the world, shall live in it now and stand for truth, together, unmasked. I am not afraid of you. I am not afraid. I AM

Love itself. I hereby surrender my old identity of broken, sick, fearful, diseased, contagious, guilty, hateful and dangerous. Instead, I embrace my true identity as whole, healthy, loving, perfect, beautiful, peaceful, giving, sacred and holy. Join with me in remembering our true nature and reclaiming our birth right to the fullness of our divine humanity in the natural free world.

Let it be So.
